LEARNING & RESEARCH

- Get to Know about the Nature Recovery Leadership Programme

The Nature Recovery Leadership Programmes in the North of England and Scotland will bring together emerging leaders from different disciplines, communities, and backgrounds who share a common ambition: to restore and regenerate nature. These new programmes will convene an exciting mix of people from diverse fields such as landscape restoration management, conservation, agriculture, energy, water, forestry, fisheries, and local and national government, and many more.

Gurjit Singh Lalli, Programme Director of the Nature Recovery Leadership Programme at Common Purpose leads efforts to expand this impactful initiative, which aims to equip emerging leaders with the skills, connections, and inspiration needed to drive nature recovery across Scotland and beyond.

The programme's independent evaluation underscores its potential as a blueprint for larger-scale leadership development initiatives, emphasising the critical need for cross-sector collaboration to address biodiversity decline. With the next Scotland programme proposal currently under review, we are hopeful to commence the new cohort in May.

Gurjit is keen to connect with individuals and organisations who might be interested in nominating participants or contributing insights to the programme. He would greatly value the opportunity to arrange a brief call with you to discuss potential opportunities within your network.

Please feel free to suggest a convenient time for a quick conversation with Gurjit. You can reach him directly at Gurjit.Lalli@commonpurpose.org.

● Turning Surplus into Support

Across the UK, more than £6.6 million worth of surplus assets from various organisations, including Aberdeenshire Council, have been passed to charities through a platform called Warp It.

From office furniture, stationery, and medical equipment to quirky treasures like pianos, football tables, yo-yo bicycles, and even a model brain—there are endless possibilities for reuse.

Charities, social enterprises, not for profits, and community groups that are not commercial but have a social service can sign up to Warp It for free to access this vast resource of items that would otherwise go to waste. After signing up, the charities can browse surplus items from other member organisations in their area and beyond to collect for free.

Member organisations using the platform reduce waste, lower expenses, conserve energy, and cut carbon emissions by ensuring that these items are reused rather than disposed of by one organisation and bought new by another.

- The following page has resources for charity groups interested in joining Warp It: Charity benefits
- To begin accessing free corporate assets, groups can register via this link: Free assets for charities on Warp It.
- You can also find further information on how to use Warp It by following this link: All you need to know about getting started on Warp It.

- Let's Talk Reuse at Peterhead Stella's Voice

Our CDOs, Francesca and Vicky had a great morning at our Let's Talk Reuse event at Peterhead Stella's Voice Charity Shop on Wednesday, 23rd April 2025. A big thank you to Graham for hosting us, sharing his knowledge and for the tour, it is very inspiring to see what is happening at Stella's Voice, but also distressing seeing how much excess there is locally and globally of everything from bikes to clothes to mattresses to toys to electrical goods, the list goes on! It takes a huge amount of time, energy and effort to keep a multifaceted organisation like Stella's Voice running! We were joined by Crawford, Aberdeenshire Councils Sustainability and Climate Change Officer, Rhona from Aberdeenshire Voluntary Action and Vicky, the local Coop Member Activator. We'll be sharing more information on how we can all be doing positive actions for reduce, reuse and recycle so watch this space!

Here at NESCAN Hub, we enjoy hearing from our members, partners, and colleagues. We often share our findings, resources, and insights from the many conversations we have but don't often capture the effect these interactions have on each of us from a personal point of view. A few days ago, I was lucky to be on a panel at the Fitto Community Hall with Lukas Burns (from We'll Scotland) at the showing of Purpose – as part of The Scottish Purpose tour with the director of Purpose Martin Götting. The film definitely met the aim to 'enable conversations that otherwise wouldn't happen.' However, it was when I reflected on the film
